Federal Aviation Administration

Index of Administrator's Decisions and Orders in Civil Penalty Actions; Publication

AGENCY: Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), DOT. ACTION: Notice of publication.

SUMMARY: This notice constitutes the required quarterly publication of an index of the Administrator's decisions and orders in civil penalty cases. The FAA is publishing an index by order number, an index by subject matter, and case digests that contain identifying information about the final decisions and orders issued by the Administrator. Publication of these indexes and digests is intended to increase the public's awareness of the Administrator's decisions and orders. Also, the publication of these indexes and digests should assist litigants and practitioners in their research and review of decisions and orders that may have precedential value in a particular civil penalty action. Publication of the index by order number, as supplemented by the index by subject matter, ensures that the agency is in compliance with statutory indexing requirements.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: James S. Dillman, Assistant Chief Counsel for Litigation (AGC–400), Federal Aviation Administration, 701 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 925, Washington, DC 20004: telephone (202) 376–6441.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Administrative Procedure Act requires Federal agencies to maintain and make available for public inspection and copying current indexes containing identifying information regarding materials required to be made available or published. 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(2). In a notice issued on July 11, 1990, and published in the Federal Register (55 FR 29148; July 17, 1990), the FAA announced the public availability of several indexes and summaries that provide identifying information about the decisions and orders issued by the Administrator under the FAA's civil penalty assessment authority and the rules of practice governing hearings and appeals of civil penalty actions. 14 CFR Part 13, Subpart G.

The FAA maintains an index of the Administrator's decisions and orders in civil penalty actions organized by order number and containing identifying information about each decision or order. The FAA also maintains a subject-matter index, and digests organized by order number.

In a notice issued on October 26, 1990, the FAA published these indexes and digests for all decisions and orders issued by the Administrator through September 30, 1990. 55 FR 45984; October 31, 1990. The FAA announced in that notice that it would publish supplements to these indexes and digests on a quarterly basis (i.e., in January, April, July, and October of each year). The FAA announced further in that notice that only the subject-matter index would be published cumulatively, and that both the order number index and the digests would be noncumulative.

Since that first index was issued on October 26, 1990 (55 FR 45984; October 31, 1990), the FAA has issued supplementary notices containing the quarterly indexes of the Administrator's civil penalty decisions as follows:

The information regarding the third quarter's decisions and orders, as well as the fourth quarter's decisions and orders in 1994, were included in the index published on January 23, 1995.

In the notice published on January 19, 1993, the Administrator announced that for the convenience of the users of these indexes, the order number index published at the end of the year would reflect all of the civil penalty decisions for that year. 58 FR 5044; 1/19/93. The order number indexes for the first,

The Administrator's final decisions and orders, indexes, and digests are available for public inspection and copying at all FAA legal offices. (The addresses of the FAA legal offices are listed at the end of this notice.)

Civil Penalty Actions—Orders Issued by the Administrator Digests

(Current as of March 31, 1996)

The digests of the Administrator's final decisions and orders are arranged by order number, and briefly summarize key points of the decision. The following compilation of digests includes all final decisions and orders issued by the Administrator from January 1, 1996, to March 31, 1996. The FAA will publish noncumulative supplements to this compilation on a quarterly basis (e.g., April, July, October, and January of each year).

These digests do not constitute legal authority, and should not be cited or relied upon as such. The digests are not intended to serve as a substitute for proper legal research. Parties, attorneys, and other interested persons should always consult the full text of the Administrator's decision before citing them in any context.

In the Matter of: [Airport Operator]

Order No. 96–1 (1/4/96)

Vehicle Gates Must Control Pedestrian Access. This case arose when FAA security inspectors found gaps, under or near two vehicle gates at the airport, that were large enough to permit unauthorized individuals to slip through into the air operations area. Despite repeated and warnings from the inspectors, the airport operator failed to correct the problem. The airport operator argued that it did not violate 14 CFR 107.13(a)(1), the regulation requiring it to control access to the air operations area, because the gates were vehicles gates. Contrary to the airport operator's arguments, the vehicle gates must control pedestrian access.

Regulation Not Unconstitutional. Section 107.13(a)(1) is not unconstitutionally vague or overbroad.

Penalty. The law judge's imposition of a $1,000 civil penalty is affirmed.

In the Matter of: Skydiving Center of Washington, D.C.

Order No. 96-2 (1/5/96)

Appeal Dismissed. Complainant has failed to prefect its appeal by filing an appeal brief, as required by the Rules of Practice. Therefore, its appeal is dismissed.

In the Matter of: America West Airlines Order No. 96–3 (2/13/96)

Failure to use methods acceptable to the Administrator. America West violated 14 CFR 43.13(a) when it repaired three Boeing 737s with speed tape. It employed methods that were not in the Boeing Structural Repair Manual and had not been accepted or approved by the Administrator for this type and extent of damage to these aircraft. America West failed to prove that it had used practices that were in keeping with those employed in the industry for this type of damage to these aircraft. Air carriers must use repair methods that have been approved or accepted by the Administrator even if the actual minor repair on a particular aircraft does not have to be inspected by a FAA representative before putting the aircraft back into service.

Airworthiness. There is a two-prong test for airworthiness: (1) the aircraft must conform to its type design or supplemental type design and to any applicable airworthiness directives, and (2) it must be in a condition for safe operation. In this case, the parties stipulated that the aircraft with the minor damage and temporary speed tape repairs did not present a safety problem. However, the aircraft with the minor damage (engine fan cowl puncture of a Boeing 737–300, and flap trailing edge delamination of a Boeing 737-200 and a Boeing 737-300) and the speed tape were not in conformity with their type designs. Although the type designs were not introduced into evidence, there was still sufficient circumstantial evidence to prove that the aircraft did not conform to their type designs. Consequently, America West violated 14 CFR 121.153 when it operated these aircraft in an unairworthy condition.

Sanction. The civil penalties totalling $44,750, for these operational and maintenance violations are affirmed.

In the Matter of: South Aero Order No. 96–4 (2/13/96)

Competency Check Flights.
Competency check flights administered by a company check pilot in a company plane occurred on duty time rather than rest time and therefore needed to be recorded on the company's flight and duty time records, even though the air carrier did not pay the pilots specifically for the time the pilots spent taking their competency checks.

In the Matter of: Alphin Aircraft, Inc.

Order No. 96-5 (2/13/96)

Petition for Modification Granted. FAA Order No. 95–22 is modified in part to allow Alphin Aircraft to file an appeal brief within 30 days of service of FAA Order No. 96–5.

In the Matter of: Evgeniy V. Ignatov Order No. 96–6 (2/13/96)

Assault and Interference with Crewmember. Willful intent to injure need not be present to show assault under 14 CFR 91.11, which prohibits assaulting, intimidating, threatening, or interfering with a crewmember in the performance of the crewmember's duties. Under Section 91.11, assault includes the concept of battery. In the instant case, Respondent committed two separate violations of Section 91.11. The first violation, which consisted of interfering with a crewmember, occurred when Respondent refused to sit down in compliance with the seat belt light and the flight attendant's request, and when he blocked the flight attendant's passage as she was attempting to serve the passengers. The second violation, which consisted of assault, occurred when Respondent pushed past the flight attendant when there was not enough room to get by safely, grabbed the flight attendant's shoulders, and stepped on the flight attendant's foot, causing her sharp pain and a bruise.

Section. The civil penalty the law judge imposed, of $750 for one violation and $1,000 for the other, is not too severe. Although Respondent points out that in another case involving the same regulation, the civil penalty assessed was only $1,000, that case involved only one violation of Section 91.11, while the instant case involves two separate violations.

In the Matter of: [Airport Operator]

Order No. 96-9 (3/5/96)

Reconsideration Denied. Nothing in the airport operator's petition for reconsideration warrants modification or reversal of Order No. 96-1. Notably absent from the petition is any case law or other legal authority to support the airport operator's contention that Order No. 96–1 was in error. Moreover, the principal arguments contained in the petition are not new. They have already been considered and rejected by the Administrator. Section 13.234(d) of the Rules of Practice, 14 CFR 13.234(d), permits the Administrator to dismiss summarily petitions to reconsider that are repetitious.
