

The guide represents the best effort of FDA, USDA, and other technical experts to identify practices that are feasible and that are likely to reduce microbial hazards. However, because of the broad-scope nature of the guide (such as covering all fresh fruits and vegetables grown in all regions of the US and overseas) and the current state of science (such as the need for additional research on pathogen survival under varying field conditions and the impact of various treatments to eliminate or reduce pathogens on the surface of crops with different physical characteristics), FDA has not attempted to rank the risk factors in order of significance or rank the intervention strategies in order of importance. It may, however, be possible to provide such information as science progresses and as additional, more focused documents (such as education and outreach materials on specific commodities or practices) are developed. To this end, FDA is requesting comment on the following:

(1) Current industry practices to reduce microbial hazards and how the recommendations in the guide might be most effectively applied to farms of various sizes. The agency specifically requests comments from small farmers and other industry groups currently employing these or other practices to reduce microbial hazards from fresh produce;

(2) Mechanisms used by growers and packers as part of good agricultural and good management practices programs and cost of application of such mechanisms;

(3) Most appropriate ways to analyze benefits and costs, such as by crop group (e.g., berries, tree fruit, vegetable row crops), by region, or by practice (e.g., manure management, water use in packing houses); and

(4) How to best draw on existing resources and expertise to assemble existing data and analyze costs and benefits (such as industry partnerships or pilot programs) to assess cost effective measures.

Interested persons may, on or before June 29, 1998, submit written comments to the Dockets Management Branch (address above) on the proposed guide. Two copies of any comments are to be submitted, except that individuals may submit one copy. Comments are to be identified with the docket number found in brackets in the heading of this document. The proposed guide may be seen in the office above between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. An electronic version of this draft guidance is available on the Internet using the WWW (<http://www.fda.gov/dockets/dockets.htm>) or (<http://vm.cfsan.fda.gov/~dms/fs-toc.html>).

National Institute of Child Health and Human Development; Meeting of the National Reading Panel

Notice is hereby given of the inaugural meeting of the National Reading Panel. The meeting will be held in Building 31, Conference Room 6, National Institutes of Health, 9000 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, Maryland 20892. The meeting will begin at 9:00 a.m. on April 24, 1998, and is expected to adjourn at 4:00 p.m. The entire meeting will be open to the public.

The National Reading Panel was requested by Congress and created by the Director of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development in consultation with the Secretary of Education. The Panel will study the effectiveness of various approaches to teaching children how to read and report on the best ways to apply these findings in classrooms and at home. Its members include prominent reading researchers, teachers, child development experts, leaders in elementary and higher education, and parents. The Chair of the Panel is Dr. Donald N. Langenberg, Chancellor of the University System of Maryland.

The Panel will build on the recently announced findings presented by the National Research Council's Committee on the Prevention of Reading Difficulties in Young Children. Based on a review of the literature, the Panel will: determine the readiness for application in the classroom of the results of these research studies; identify appropriate means to rapidly disseminate this information to facilitate effective reading instruction in the schools; and identify gaps in the knowledge base for reading instruction and the best ways to close these gaps.

The inaugural meeting will address issues of Panel organization, task assignment, and scheduling of future meetings. A period of time will be set aside at approximately 3:00 p.m. for members of the public to address the Panel and express their views regarding the Panel's mission. Individuals desiring an opportunity to speak before the Panel should address their requests to F. William Dommel, Jr., Executive Director, National Reading Panel, c/o Ms. Jaimee Nusbacher and either mail them to IQ Solutions, 11300 Rockville Pike, Suite 801, Rockville, Maryland 20852, email them to jnusbacher@iqsolutions.com, or fax them to (301) 984-1473. Requests for addressing the Panel should be received by April 13, 1998. Panel business permitting, each public presenter will be allowed five minutes to present his or her views. In the event of a large number of public presenters, the Panel Chair retains the option to further limit the presentation time allowed to each. Although the time permitted for oral presentations will be brief, the full text of all written comments submitted to the Panel will be made available to the Panel members for consideration.
