

The applicant differs from the usual hardship petitioner in that it is a corporation whose net revenues are positive and healthy. The hardship to be borne in this instance is the effect of a denial upon the company. The applicant's production is limited in number; it produced 102 trailers in 1996, of which 86 are of the type for which exemption is sought. This is approximately 85 percent of its production. Although the remaining trailer types appear to contribute a proportionally greater part of the company's gross revenues, these revenues would decline by a significant percentage. There is also the economic cost, not discussed by the company, of maintaining unused manufacturing facilities and settling accounts with suppliers for goods ordered and canceled.

The company's efforts to comply appear to have been stymied by the unacceptability of a redesign of the Flow Boy to its consumers. Its application indicates that, for the past three years, it has looked at home and abroad in search of a solution that meets both safety and market needs. It will continue to do so if granted an exemption.

The applicant has argued that an exemption is in the public interest because the Flow Boy aids in construction of the national highway system. While the company did not quantify its work force, it estimated that approximately 60 percent of it would have to be laid off in the wake of a denial. Thus, the company could have argued that continued full employment of its work force is also in the public interest.

Finally, the company believes that an exemption is consistent with objectives of motor vehicle safety because the Flow Boy spends very little of its operating life on the highway and the likelihood of it being involved in a rear-end collision is minimal. NHTSA understands this to mean that proportion of time spent in transit on the roads from one job site to another will be small in comparison with the time spent at rest at construction sites amidst other road equipment. This indicates that the exposure of a Flow Boy without a rear underride guard to a potential crash situation will be reduced. The small number of trailers that may be produced under the exemption, less than 100, further reduces the crash potential.

In consideration of the foregoing, it is hereby found that requiring compliance with Standard No. 224 as of its effective date would cause substantial economic hardship to a manufacturer that has tried in good faith to comply with the standard. It is also found that an exemption would be in the public interest and consistent with the objectives of motor vehicle safety. Accordingly, the company of Dan Hill & Associates is hereby granted NHTSA Temporary Exemption No. 98-1 from 49 CFR 571.224 Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 224 Rear Underride Protection, expiring February 1, 1999.
