

federal level and among the states. The Tribal Affairs Project concentrates on chemical and prevention issues that are most relevant to the tribes, including lead control and abatement, subsistence lifestyle, and hazard communications and outreach. Under the Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act, EPA, the states, and tribes share responsibility for handling toxic chemical release information and making it available to the public through the Toxics Release Inventory. Through the Toxics Release Inventory Project, EPA and the state TRI program staff have an opportunity to discuss what works and what does not in their respective programs and to share ideas for the future evolution of the program.

IV. Purpose of Meeting

This unit provides the tentative agenda items identified by NCSL, the states, and the tribes:

1. Update on the High Production Volume Challenge Program and the Voluntary Children's Chemical Evaluation Program (Chemical Information and Management Project)
2. Pollution Prevention Integration Opportunities (Pollution Prevention Project)
3. Lead Workshops/Guidance Documents (Toxics Release Inventory Project)
4. Tribal Risk Assessment and Subsistence Summit (Tribal Affairs Project)
5. Other topics as appropriate.

V. How Can I Participate in This Meeting?

You may submit a request to participate in this meeting in the mail or electronically to the names under the FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT. Do not submit any information in your request that is considered Confidential Business Information. Your request must be received by EPA on or before October 19, 2001.

Atrazine; Availability of Preliminary Risk Assessment

AGENCY: Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: This notice announces the availability of documents that were developed as part of EPA's pilot public participation process for making reregistration eligibility decisions for the organophosphate and certain other, non-organophosphate pesticides and for tolerance reassessments consistent with the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (FFDCA), as amended by the Food Quality Protection Act of 1996 (FQPA). These documents are the preliminary ecological fate and effects risk assessment and related documents for atrazine. This notice also starts a 60-day public comment period for the preliminary risk assessment. Comments are to be limited to issues directly associated with atrazine and raised by the risk assessment or other documents placed in the docket. By allowing access and opportunity for comment on the preliminary risk assessment, EPA is seeking to strengthen stakeholder involvement and help ensure that our decisions under FQPA are transparent and based on the best available information. The tolerance reassessment process will ensure that the United States continues to have the safest and most abundant food supply. The Agency cautions that risk assessments at this stage are preliminary only and that further refinements of the risk assessment may be appropriate for this pesticide. This document reflects only the work and analysis conducted as of the time it was produced and it is appropriate that, as new information becomes available and/or additional analyses are performed, the conclusions it contains may change. Concurrent with the Office of Pesticide Programs' release of the preliminary ecological fate and effects risk assessment for atrazine announced in this notice, EPA's Office of Water is publishing its draft aquatic life criteria document for atrazine elsewhere in this issue of the Federal Register.

DATES: Comments, identified by the docket control number OPP-34237A for atrazine, must be received on or before November 26, 2001.

ADDRESSES: Comments may be submitted by mail, electronically, or in person. Please follow the detailed instructions for each method as provided in Unit I. of the SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION. To ensure proper receipt by EPA, it is imperative that you identify the docket control number for atrazine in the subject line on the first page of your response.

II. Background

A. What Action is the Agency Taking?

EPA is making available a preliminary risk assessment that has been developed as part of EPA's process for making reregistration eligibility decisions for the organophosphate and other pesticides and for tolerance reassessments consistent with the FFDCA, as amended by the FQPA. The Agency's preliminary ecological fate and effects risk assessment and other related documents for atrazine are available in the individual pesticide dockets. Earlier, on February 14, 2001 (66 FR 10287) (FRL-6765-3), EPA released the preliminary human health risk assessment and related documents for atrazine through the docket. As additional comments, reviews, and risk assessment modifications become available, these will also be docketed for atrazine.

The Agency cautions that the atrazine risk assessment is preliminary only and that further refinements may be appropriate. This document reflects only the work and analysis conducted as of the time it was produced and it is appropriate that, as new information becomes available and/or additional analyses are performed, the conclusions it contains may change.

Concurrent with the Office of Pesticide Programs release of the preliminary ecological fate and effects risk assessment for atrazine announced in this notice, EPA's Office of Water is publishing its draft aquatic life criteria document for atrazine, elsewhere in this issue of the Federal Register. The Offices of Water and Pesticide Programs currently are consulting on their respective ecological risk assessment methodologies. Although there are similarities in the two offices' approaches, differences remain. When the consultation is completed, revisions to the atrazine ecological fate and effects preliminary risk assessment may be necessary. While the consultation is underway, both offices are making their respective ecological risk assessments for atrazine available to the public and requesting comment on their respective methodologies. It would be helpful if comments regarding the methodology that are made to one office are also made to the other.

The Agency is providing an opportunity, through this notice, for interested parties to provide written comments and input to the Agency on the preliminary risk assessment for the chemical specified in this notice. Such comments and input could address, for example, the availability of additional data to further refine the risk assessment, such as percent crop treated information or submission of residue data from food processing studies, or could address the Agency's risk assessment methodologies and assumptions as applied to this specific chemical. Comments should be limited to issues raised within the preliminary risk assessment and associated documents. EPA will provide other opportunities for public comment on other science issues associated with the pesticide tolerance reassessment program. Failure to comment on any such issues as part of this opportunity will in no way prejudice or limit a commenter's opportunity to participate fully in later notice and comment processes. All comments should be submitted by November 26, 2001 using the methods in Unit I. of the SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION. Comments will become part of the Agency record for atrazine.
