

austenitic stainless steel pipe. Section 192.113 requires a 0.80 L/JF to be used in the design formula given under § 192.105 for pipe over 4 inches in diameter and manufactured to a specification not listed under § 192.113. This limitation is imposed because the quality of the pipe material, the manufacturing process, and the extent of inspection may not be to the same standard as the pipe for which a 1.0 L/JF is permitted.

TPI stated the following reasons for selecting austenitic stainless steel pipe and the use of a 1.0 L/JF:

- The pipeline meets the requirements of the U.S. Navy and is a low magnetic permeability pipe material;
- The pipeline is manufactured to the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) standards ASTM A-358 and A-999;
- The plate material is manufactured to comply with standards ASTM A-240 and Unified Numbering System S31254;
- The selected material is compatible with the bending properties and the test criteria in Appendix B of 49 CFR Part 192;
- The selected material is compatible with the weldability testing and inspection criteria required by Appendix B of 49 CFR Part 192; and
- The selected material is consistent with prior practice of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME) standard ASME B31.8 to allow a L/JF of 1.0 when the longitudinal seam has been subjected to 100% X-ray.

TPI will require girth weld testing and will X-ray 100% of the girth welds of this pipeline as part of the procurement specification to comply with the weldability requirements of Appendix B, Section II (B) of 49 CFR Part 192. TPI will purchase ASTM A-358, Class 1 pipe and radiograph 100% of the longitudinal joint, and TPI will exceed the tensile testing requirements of ASTM A-358 (Section 12) for both the plate and the welded joint by performing one tensile test per 5 lengths of pipe. Only one test per 10 lengths of pipeline is required under the weldability section of Appendix B Section II (B) of 49 CFR Part 192.
