Summary of the Notice

1. In this Public Notice, we seek comment on the status of children's television programming, and compliance with the Children's Television Act ("CTA") and the Commission's rules.

2. The CTA requires the Commission, in its review of each television broadcast license renewal application, to "consider the extent to which the licensee * * * has served the educational and informational needs of children through the licensee's overall programming, including programming specifically designed to serve such needs." In enacting the CTA, Congress found that, while television can benefit society by helping to educate and inform children, there are significant market disincentives for commercial broadcasters to air children's educational and informational programming. The objective of Congress in enacting the CTA was to increase the amount of educational and informational programming available on television. The CTA accomplished that objective by placing on every licensee an obligation to provide such programming, including programming specifically designed to educate and inform children, and by requiring the FCC to enforce that obligation.

3. In November 2004, the Commission released a Report and Order and Further Notice of Proposed Rule Making ("2004 Order") in MM Docket No. 00–167, Children's Television Obligations of Digital Television Broadcasters. The 2004 Order addressed matters related to the obligation of television licensees to provide educational programming for children and the requirement that television licensees protect children from excessive and inappropriate commercial messages. In September 2006, the Commission released a Second Order on Reconsideration and Second Report and Order ("2006

Order"), which adopted the recommendations of a Joint Proposal submitted by representatives of the broadcast and cable industries and public interest groups involved in children's television issues. This 2006 Order modified and clarified the rules adopted in the 2004 Order.

4. As part of the 2004 Order, the Commission indicated that it intended to issue a Public Notice "seeking comment on whether broadcasters are complying with the letter and intent of the CTA in terms of, among other things, the amount and quality of core children's programming being provided and the extent of preemption of such programming." More recently, the Commission entered into a Consent Decree with Univision to resolve petitions to deny filed against pending license renewal applications. Petitioners alleged that certain Univision stations did not comply with the children's programming rules, claiming that the programs relied upon as "core" did not serve the educational and informational needs of children.

5. This Public Notice is being issued in furtherance of the 2004 Order. We invite comment regarding the state of children's television programming. Are licensees complying with the CTA? Does the programming that licensees have reported as core children's programming generally meet the Commission's standards? Educational and informational television programming is defined by the Commission as:

Any television programming that furthers the educational and informational needs of children 16 years of age and under in any respect, including the child's intellectual/cognitive or social/emotional needs. Programming specifically designed to serve the educational and informational needs of children ("Core Programming") is educational and informational programming that satisfies the following additional criteria:

(1) It has serving the educational and informational needs of children ages 16 and under as a significant purpose;

(2) It is aired between the hours of 7 a.m. and 10 p.m.;

(3) It is a regularly scheduled weekly program;

(4) It is at least 30 minutes in length;

(5) The program is identified as specifically designed to educate and inform children by the display on the television screen throughout the program of the symbol E/I;

(6) The educational and informational objective and the target child audience are specified in writing in the licensee's Children's Television Programming Report, as described in section 73.3526(e)(11)(iii) of the Commission's rules; and

(7) Instructions for listing the program as educational/ informational, including an indication of the age group for which the program is intended, are provided by the licensee to publishers of program guides, as described in section 73.673 of the Commission's rules.

6. Are the core programming criteria listed in the Commission's rules adequate to properly define educational and informational programming? Do these criteria fulfill the requirements of the CTA? Should the Commission consider additional criteria? Does the current level of preemption affect compliance with the CTA and Congressional intent? In what other ways are licensees complying, or not, with the CTA and the Commission's rules related to children's programming?

7. Ex Parte Rules. This proceeding will be treated as a "permit-but-disclose" proceeding subject to the "permit-but-disclose" requirements under section 1.1206(b) of the Commission's rules. Ex parte presentations are permissible if disclosed in accordance with Commission rules, except during the Sunshine Agenda period when presentations, ex parte or otherwise, are generally prohibited. Persons making oral ex parte presentations are reminded that a memorandum summarizing a presentation must contain a summary of the substance of the presentation and not merely a listing of the subjects discussed. More than a one- or two-sentence description of the views and arguments presented is generally required. Additional rules pertaining to oral and written presentations are set forth in section 1.1206(b).
