History and Description of the Remains

In July 1981, human remains representing, at minimum, one individual were removed from site 40RE86 in Roane County, TN, as a result of an archeological investigation. The site dates to the Mississippian period (specifically, the eastern Tennessee Dallas Phase, A.D. 1300 to 1600). Based on the associated pottery found at the site, the human remains date to about A.D. 1400. No known individuals were identified. The one associated funerary object is a small shell tempered vessel.

The Dallas Phase people of the Upper Tennessee Valley are not clearly identifiable as being culturally affiliated with a modern-day tribe. However, based on consultation and the totality of circumstances surrounding acquisition of the human remains and associated funerary object, the U.S. Department of Energy Oak Ridge Office has determined by a reasonable belief that the human remains and associated funerary object are culturally affiliated with the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.

Determinations Made by the U.S. Department of Energy Oak Ridge Office

Officials of the U.S. Department of Energy Oak Ridge Office have determined that:

- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(9), the human remains described in this notice represent the physical remains of one individual of Native American ancestry.
- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(3)(A), the one object described above is reasonably believed to have been placed with or near individual human remains at the time of death or later as part of the death rite or ceremony.
- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(2), there is a relationship of shared group identity that can be reasonably traced between the Native American human remains and the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.
