SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Maritime Transportation Security Act (MTSA) of 2002 establishes a comprehensive national system of transportation security enhancements to protect America's maritime community against the threat of terrorism without adversely affecting the flow of commerce through United States ports. The United States Coast Guard (USCG) is the lead Federal agency for maritime homeland security and has significant enforcement responsibilities under the MTSA. Among other responsibilities under the MTSA, the Coast Guard requires that maritime security plans be developed for ports, vessels and facilities, and that those with access to maritime facilities have credentials demonstrating their eligibility for such access.

Homeport, a new system of records under the Privacy Act of 1974, will facilitate implementation of these requirements. Representatives of the maritime industry, members of Area Maritime Security Committees, which are required under the MTSA, other entities regulated by the MTSA, and USCG and other officials will be able to register and use Homeport for secure information dissemination and collaboration. In this aspect regulated entities will be able to use Homeport for electronic submission and approval of required security plans and the Coast Guard will be able to verify compliance with security requirements. Homeport will also be used to collect information from and about individuals for whom background screening will be conducted for purposes of establishing USCG-approved identification credentials for access to maritime facilities, and to inform owners and operators of those maritime facilities of the names of persons who have passed the background screening. Homeport also has the capability to be used as a communications tool in the event of a natural disaster or other emergency to facilitate secure communications.

The Privacy Act embodies fair information principles in a statutory framework governing the means by which the United States Government collects, maintains, uses, and disseminates personally identifiable information. The Privacy Act applies to information that is maintained in a "system of records." A "system of records" is a group of any records under the control of an agency from which information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. Information in Homeport about registered users and those subject to screening for purposes of credentialing will be maintained in a system of records.

The Privacy Act requires each agency to published in the Federal Register a description denoting the type and character of each system of records that the agency maintains, and the routine uses that are contained in each system to make agency recordkeeping practices transparent, to notify individuals regarding the uses to which personally identifiable information is put, and to assist the individual to more easily find such files within the agency. Individuals may request their own records that are maintained in a system of records in the possession or under the control of DHS by complying with DHS Privacy Act regulations (6 CFR 5.21).

USCG is hereby publishing the description of the Homeport system of records. In accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(r), a report of this new system of records has been provided to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and to the Congress.
