- SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: In recognition of organizational, economic, and technological changes in western irrigated farming that have occurred since the Reclamation Act of 1902, the Reclamation Reform Act of 1982 (RRA), Title II, Public Law 97-293 (96 Stat. 1263), was signed into law on October 12, 1982. The RRA revised the number of acres upon which a landowner could receive Reclamation irrigation water. RRA provisions established how much land upon which a landowner could receive Reclamation irrigation water, established reporting requirements, set specific criteria for the price at which an individual or legal entity could receive Reclamation water, and established a requirement for districts to prepare water conservation plans. Amendments to the RRA were included in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of December 22, 1987 (Reconciliation Act), Title V, Public Law 100-203 (101 Stat. 1330).
- Rules and regulations for implementing the RRA, initially becoming effective on January 5, 1984, were amended in 1987, 1988, 1991, and 1995. Environmental assessments and associated supplements were prepared in 1983, 1987, and 1988 that resulted in "Findings of No Significant Impact" from implementation of the proposed rules and regulations.
- The proposed rules and regulations and the draft environmental impact statement (DEIS) were prepared in response to a September 1993 contract between the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Department of Justice, and the Department of the Interior for the settlement of a lawsuit challenging the inadequacy of the environmental documentation prepared for the 1987 and 1988 amendments to the RRA rules and regulations. Reclamation agreed to propose new regulations as part of a new rulemaking proceeding that comprehensively reexamines implementation of the RRA, and prepare an EIS considering the impacts of the proposed regulations and alternatives. The FEIS represents a modification of the DEIS based upon public comments.

Six alternatives—including no action and preferred—are presented in the FEIS. They encompass varying levels of regulation to implement the RRA on a westwide basis. This is an EIS in which existing information was used in conjunction with the development of specific assumptions to estimate a range of potential environmental impacts resulting from specific rule changes. While the significance of these impacts on a westwide basis is small, localized impacts could be significant for some alternatives.

Dated: February 2, 1996.
