SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:*I. Abstract

The Census Bureau is developing a methodology to produce data on a continual basis, rather than only once every ten years during the decennial census. This methodology is referred to as Continuous Measurement, and the vehicle for collecting the data is a monthly household survey called the American Community Survey (ACS). The Census Bureau began the ACS in late 1995 in four test sites and has expanded the program every year since. The Census Bureau plans to continue expanding the ACS, and put the ACS fully in place nationally in 2003.

For the ACS, we select most of the survey sample addresses from the Census Bureau's Master Address File (MAF). The MAF is a list of addresses that the Bureau is compiling for use during the decennial census in 2000. There are some areas for which a MAF will not be created until the time of the decennial census. These areas are list/enumerate areas, meaning that Bureau staff will list addresses at the time of the decennial enumeration. These types of areas will be in the ACS for the first time in 2000. In order to conduct the ACS in 2000-2002 for these areas, we will have Census Bureau employees called "listers" compile a list of address in a sample of blocks in the list/enumerate areas of counties we have selected for the 2000-2002 ACS. Most of the listing activities will be completed during 1999, but there may be some areas which will require listing in 2000 and 2001.

Address listing will be conducted in approximately 1,200 blocks. Listers will canvass (walk or drive) each of these blocks, identifying each structure where people live or could live, including housing units and group quarters. They will record the block number and each physical location address or description on an Area Segment Listing Sheet. For each living quarters, the lister will attempt to conduct an interview to collect the mailing address, occupant name or group quarters contact person name, and telephone number. If no one is at home, the lister will attempt to interview a neighbor to obtain this information. If unable to obtain the information, the lister will make up to three personal and two telephone callbacks to obtain the information. The lister will also spot the location of the living quarters on a Block Map and update the Block Maps by adding missing roads, road names, or other map features as necessary, and deleting roads that no longer exist. The address information and map spots will be directly used to mail ACS Questionnaires to sample addresses, and to locate addresses for non-response follow-up in the ACS, should that become necessary.

II. Method of Collection

The primary method of data collection for all operations will be personal interview by listers using the operation's listing form. In some cases, the interview could be by telephone callback if no one was home on the initial visit.
