

Commission approval before substituting the securities held by the trust. Section 26(b) also states that the Commission shall issue an order approving such substitution if the evidence establishes that it is consistent with the protection of investors and the purposes fairly intended by the policy and provisions of the 1940 Act.

3. The Contract expressly reserves to the depositor (originally WM Life) the right, subject to compliance with applicable law, to substitute shares of another open-end registered investment company for shares of an open-end registered investment company held by a subaccount of the separate account. Applicants represent that the statement of additional information for the Contract and the SAFECO Account contains appropriate disclosure of this right.

4. This right of substitution was reserved to protect the depositor and the Contract owners in situations where either might be harmed or disadvantaged by circumstances surrounding the issuer of the shares held by one or more of the depositor's separate accounts, and to afford the opportunity to replace such shares where to do so could benefit the depositor and Contract owners.

5. Applicants represent that the Trust's Growth Portfolio, Northwest Portfolio, and Bond Portfolio are each suitable and appropriate investment vehicles for Contract owners. The investment objectives of each of the Trust Portfolios involved in the substitution are substantially similar to the investment objectives of the corresponding Composite Fund Portfolio.

6. Applicants anticipate that Contract owners will be at least as well off with the proposed array of investment options offered after the proposed substitutions as they have been with the array of investment options offered prior to the substitutions. The proposed substitutions retain investment flexibility for Contract owners, which is a central feature of the Contracts. All Contract owners will be permitted to allocate purchase payments to and transfer Contract values among and between the same number of investment subaccounts (with substantially the same investment objectives) as they could before the proposed substitutions.

7. Applicants assert that none of the proposed substitutions is the type of substitution which Section 26(b) was designed to prevent. Unlike traditional unit investment trusts where a depositor could only substitute an investment security in a manner which permanently affected all the investors in the trust, the Contract provides each Contract owner with the right to exercise his or her own judgment and transfer account values into other investment subaccounts. Moreover, SAFECO will offer Contract owners the opportunity to transfer amounts out of the affected subaccounts into any of the remaining subaccounts without cost or other disadvantage. The proposed substitutions, therefore will not result in the type of costly forced redemption which Section 26(b) was designed to prevent.

8. In addition, the proposed substitutions are unlike the type of substitution which Section 26(b) was designed to prevent in that by purchasing a Contract, Contract owners select much more than a particular investment company in which to invest their Contract values. They also select the specific type of insurance coverage offered under their Contract as well as numerous other rights and privileges set forth in the Contract. Contract owners may also have considered the depositor's size, financial condition, type and its reputation for service in selecting their Contract. None of these factors will diminish as a result of the proposed substitutions.

9. Finally, whereas the assets of the Composite Fund can be expected to remain stagnant or decline since no new Contracts are being sold, the proposed substitutions will allow Contract owners to participate in mutual fund portfolios that are being actively sold through other separate accounts, and therefore the assets of the Trust are likely to increase.

Conclusion

Applicants submit that, for all the reasons stated above, the proposed substitutions are consistent with the protection of investors and the purposes fairly intended by the policy and provisions of the 1940 Act.

For the Commission, by the Division of Investment Management, pursuant to delegated authority.

Jonathan G. Katz,
