Synopsis

First, with regard to new nonexempt English language programming, between January 1, 2004, and December 31, 2005, a video programming distributor shall provide at least 1,350 hours of captioned video programming or all of its new nonexempt video programming must be provided with captions, whichever is less. These hours are measured on a per channel, per calendar quarter basis. The Commission's closed captioning benchmarks apply to both analog new programming (i.e., video programming that was first published or exhibited on or after January 1, 1998), and digital new video programming. Digital new programming is video programming prepared or formatted for display on digital televisions that was first published or exhibited on or after July 1, 2002. This benchmark is the last before the final benchmark of January 1, 2006, when 100% of all new nonexempt programming must be captioned. Second, with regard to pre-rule nonexempt English video programming, as of January 1, 2003, 30% of such programming was required to be captioned. Furthermore, as of January 1, 2008, and thereafter, 75% of the programming distributor's pre-rule nonexempt video programming being distributed and exhibited on each channel during each calendar quarter must be provided with closed captioning. Analog pre-rule programming is video programming that was first published or exhibited before January 1, 1998. Digital pre-rule programming is video programming first published or exhibited before July 1, 2002. Third, with regard to new nonexempt Spanish language programming, between January 1, 2004, and December 31, 2006, 900 hours of such programming must be closed captioned per channel per quarter, an increase from 450 hours, leading to the final benchmark of 100% of new nonexempt Spanish language programming starting January 1, 2010. Lastly, the first benchmark for pre-rule nonexempt Spanish language programming is January 1, 2005, after which 30% of the programming distributor's pre-rule nonexempt Spanish language video programming being distributed and exhibited on each channel during each calendar quarter must be provided with closed captioning. Beginning January 1, 2012, and thereafter, 75% of the programming distributor's pre-rule nonexempt Spanish language video programming must be provided with closed captioning.
