

(B) McLaren also states that if the TPMS fails to detect a compatible sensor, the TPMS indicator on the instrument cluster will display no value for the tire pressure at the affected wheel(s). This will also alert the driver to the fact that something is not functioning properly with the system, pending the illumination of the malfunction indicator.

(C) McLaren further states that with the exception of the subject noncompliance, all other aspects of the malfunction indicator and of the TPMS in general, are compliant with FMVSS No. 138.

(D) McLaren confirms that it has received no customer complaints about this condition.

McLaren has additionally informed NHTSA that they have corrected this noncompliance in all vehicles manufactured after February 18, 2014.

In summation, McLaren believes that the described noncompliance of the subject vehicles is inconsequential to motor vehicle safety, and that its petition, to exempt McLaren from providing recall notification of noncompliance as required by 49 U.S.C. 30118 and remedying the recall noncompliance as required by 49 U.S.C. 30120 should be granted.

NHTSA notes that the statutory provisions (49 U.S.C. 30118(d) and 30120(h)) that permit manufacturers to file petitions for a determination of inconsequentiality allow NHTSA to exempt manufacturers only from the duties found in sections 30118 and 30120, respectively, to notify owners, purchasers, and dealers of a defect or noncompliance and to remedy the defect or noncompliance. Therefore, any decision on this petition only applies to the subject vehicles that McLaren no longer controlled at the time it determined that the noncompliance existed. However, any decision on this petition does not relieve vehicle distributors and dealers of the prohibitions on the sale, offer for sale, or introduction or delivery for introduction into interstate commerce of the noncompliant vehicles under their control after McLaren notified them that the subject noncompliance existed.

Authority: 49 U.S.C. 30118, 30120; Delegations of authority at 49 CFR 1.95 and 501.8.

Director, Office of Vehicle Safety Compliance.
