

Estimated number of respondents: 206,530 (total).

Frequency of response: Initially and annually.

Total estimated burden: 408,000 hours (per year). Burden is defined at 5 CFR 1320.3(b).

Total estimated cost: $41,200,000 (per year), includes $167,000 annualized capital or operation & maintenance costs.

Changes in the Estimates: There is an increase in the respondent burden hours from the ICR currently approved by OMB. The increase in burden from the most recently approved ICR is primarily due to accounting for burden items that became applicable as sources came into full compliance with the rule. In this ICR period, owners/operators of emergency stationary CI ICE must begin submitting annual reports. The first annual report must cover the calendar year 2015 and must be submitted no later than March 31, 2016. In addition, this ICR includes the burden for owners/operators of stationary CI ICE equipped with diesel particulate filter to maintain records of any corrective action taken after the high backpressure limit of the engine is approached, which became applicable in 2011.

There is a decrease in the estimated number of responses and the O&M cost due to corrections to the Agency's estimates. The decrease is not due to any program changes. The previous ICR incorrectly included responses for non-emergency operations, and had an inconsistency in calculating the O&M cost for selective enforcement audit.

Abstract: Title V of the CAA requires states to develop and implement a program for issuing operating permits to all sources that fall under any Act definition of "major" and certain other non-major sources that are subject to Federal air quality regulations. The Act further requires EPA to develop regulations that establish the minimum requirements for those state operating permits programs and to oversee implementation of the state programs. The EPA regulations setting forth requirements for the state operating permit program are found at 40 CFR part 70. The part 70 program is designed to be implemented primarily by state, local and tribal permitting authorities in all areas where they have jurisdiction.

In order to receive an operating permit for a major or other source subject to the permitting program, the applicant must conduct the necessary research, perform the appropriate analyses, and prepare the permit application with documentation to demonstrate that its facility meets all applicable statutory and regulatory requirements. Specific activities and requirements are listed and described in the Supporting Statement for the 40 CFR part 70 ICR.

Under 40 CFR part 70, state, local and tribal permitting authorities review permit applications, provide for public review of proposed permits, issue permits based on consideration of all technical factors and public input and review information submittals required of sources during the term of the permit. Also, under 40 CFR part 70, the EPA reviews certain actions of the permitting authorities and provides oversight of the programs to ensure that they are being adequately implemented and enforced. Consequently, information prepared and submitted by sources is essential for sources to receive permits, and for federal, state, local and tribal permitting authorities to adequately review the permit applications and thereby properly administer and manage the program.

Information that is collected is handled according to EPA's policies set forth in title 40, chapter 1, part 2, subpart B—Confidentiality of Business Information (see 40 CFR part 2). See also section 114(c) of the Act.

Respondents/affected entities: Industrial plants (sources); state, local and tribal permitting authorities.

Respondent's obligation to respond: Mandatory (see 40 CFR part 70).

Estimated number of respondents: 15,780 sources and 116 state, local and tribal permitting authorities.

Frequency of response: On occasion.

Total estimated burden: 5,168,815 hours (per year). Burden is defined at 5 CFR 1320.3(b).

Total estimated cost: $326,493,677 (per year). There are no annualized capital or operation & maintenance costs.

Changes in Estimates: There is a decrease of 144,871 hours per year for the estimated respondent burden compared with the ICR currently approved by OMB. This decrease is not likely a result of any new or changed federal program or mandate; but rather, the costs are largely related to the projected number of sources and permitting activity during the relevant three year period.

Acting Director, Collection Strategies Division.

Abstract: ENERGY STAR is a voluntary program developed in collaboration with industry to create a self-sustaining market for energy efficient products. The center piece of the program is the ENERGY STAR label, a registered certification label that helps consumers identify products that save energy, save money, and help protect the environment without sacrificing quality or performance. In order to protect the integrity of the label and enhance its effectiveness in the marketplace, EPA must ensure that products carrying the label meet appropriate program requirements.

Program participants submit signed Partnership Agreements indicating that they will adhere to logo-use guidelines and program requirements. Retail partners commit to selling, marketing and promoting ENERGY STAR certified products. Product brand owner partners, who are usually the manufacturer of the products, commit to having participating products certified to meet specified energy performance criteria based on a standard test method and EPA's third party certification requirements. These requirements for ENERGY STAR product certification also include provisions for verifying the performance of certified products through verification testing. The program's emphasis on testing and third-party product review ensures that consumers can trust ENERGY STAR certified products to deliver the energy savings promised by the label. In rare circumstances where product brand licensee's wish to partner with EPA, the Agency establishes the appropriate contacts and relationships for the brand owner and licensee through a joint brand owner and licensee template that both parties are required to sign.

As part of the Agency's contribution to the overall success of the program, EPA facilitates the sale of certified products by providing consumers with easy-to-use information about the products. To perform this function, EPA must obtain data on certified products. Prior to EPA adopting a third-party certification process, product brand owners were required to submit individual product information directly to the Agency. Now, product information is recorded by Certification Bodies and shared with EPA using XML-based web services that validate and save the information in EPA's database. EPA believes the improved
